New Industry Mean Civic Problems

WHEN A $30 MILLION DOL-LAR INDUSTRY is suddenly established in two small communities there are bound to be human problems in addition to those economic and technical.
This is the situation in Whitehall and Montague, two communities north of Muskegon on Lake Michigan. There three companies — Hooker Electro-chemical, Du-Pont and Union Carbide and Carbon — established multi-million dollar chemical plants to tap Michigan's inexhaustible supply of subterranean salt. They produce caustic soda, chlorine and hydrogen.

"Alive in the summer — dead in the winter" characterized Whitehall and Montague before the entrance of the suddenly mushrooming chemical industry. Once great lumbering towns, these rural communities relied on tourist trade as the chief source of income since lower peninsula lumbering died out.

New residents meant suddenly expanded local business, banking facilities, enlarged schools. Many more homes produced questions that had to be faced and immediately answered by townspeople accustomed to a less rapid pace of life.

The problem of fitting new residents into the local scene never really arose. In Montague, Hooker plant personnel found quick acceptance as new citizens. "New" people soon served as president and vice-president of the Montague Parent Teacher Association, president and secretary of the Whitehall Parent Teachers Association, president of the local Rotary Club and president of the American Business Club.

A policy of buying locally and hiring locally whenever possible was adopted by the DuPont company. This gave Whitehall and Montague businessmen a chance to participate in the boom and further cemented friendly relations. Retailers quickly expanded operations to meet community needs.

To provide new and adequate housing, 11 subdivisions were quickly developed. Montague constructed a new high school, planned with an eye to future growth. A new supermarket established operations — others are in the "persistent-rumor" stage.

Permanent expansion is now anticipated by local citizens. "The $30 million dollar figure involves only plants now operating or proposed for the immediate future.
Residents feel this is only the beginning. Companies using the basic materials produced by the new chemical plants are expected to establish facilities nearby.

But with the human problem firmly in hand, both "old" and "new" residents look forward to a happy, prosperous living.

MEALS FOR MILLIONS of the world's starving people are provided by Michigan residents through their support of the Christian Rural Overseas Program more commonly called CROP.

Russell M. Hartzler, CROP director for this state, manages a Lansing office which hurries food and material to refugees, disaster victims and destitute persons without question as to race, creed or religion.

Operating as the relief arm of Church World Service, a cooperating group of religious denominations, CROP personnel distribute food through existing church channels.

nationality. Under CROP some $940,000 worth of food from Michigan alone was distributed since 1949. This year's goal is $1,000,000.

Double benefits exist for the CROP contributor. First he has the knowledge that he is helping feed and equip hungry people.
Secondly CROP offers an economically sound way to utilize immense food surpluses which exist in the United States. This, in turn reduces the surplus problem here.

Contributions come as bulk donations of grain, beans and other non-perishable foods, or in cash. Hartzler says that local groups are organized to handle the gifts.

Referring to local organizations as the "strongest foundation for building the future," he states, "13 county groups — Berrien, Gratiot, Jackson, Lenawee, Monroe, Washtenaw, Wayne, Saginaw, Barry, Eaton, Ingham, Genesee, Kent and Ionia — are doing a fine job. Our goal is to have local organizations in every Michigan county to carry out the task of aiding our needy fellowmen."

The movement is spreading from rural origin to include urban areas.

Biggest boost in stretching the CROP dollar came in 1954 when the federal government authorized release of "surplus food" by private agencies to friendly people of the world.

Using this machinery, one dollar donated to CROP will supply 100 pounds of basic food commodities. A single dollar buys 40 pounds of wheat and 10 pounds each of beans, corn products, butter, dried milk, cheese and rice.

"If people could only see the great good they can do in establishing friendly relationships with the starving countries abroad, our goal can be easily surpassed."

He returned recently from a personal tour of Greece and other countries where CROP dollars are doing much to reaffirm the basic dignity of the individual.

"Approximately one-half of our $100,000 goal will be spent for surplus food," Hartzler states.
"The rest will be used for sending non-surplus foods, seeds, helpers, artificial insemination, equipment for dairy cattle. In this way we help the people to help themselves become self-sufficient again."

LAST FLING

Traffic Death Statistics ...

To our desk the other day came a complete report of traffic deaths, both urban and rural, in Michigan, from 1951 to 1955 inclusive, compiled by the Michigan State Police.

It brought out some rather startling detailed figures. The first figures that rather shocked us was that it is more dangerous on the highways in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula than in any other part of the state. During 1955, there were 48.6 people out of every 100,000 population killed in traffic in the northern part of the Lower Peninsula, north of the Oceana to Bay County line. South of that line, where one would expect the highest incidence of traffic death, the figure was only 30.3 and in the Upper Peninsula, the figure was 26.5.

During the 10,000 motor cars followed the same pattern almost. The northern Lower Peninsula led with a 107 figure with the Upper Peninsula next with 6.6 and the southern half of the Lower Peninsula having 6.1.

One part of the report gave a little comfort to our section. The City of Grayling has not had a traffic death within the city limits during the five year period. However, death on the rural roads of our county has struck down 24 persons during that time. In the year, 1952 only 2 lost their lives but the very next year the death toll jumped to 9. There are twenty counties in the state with a lower death total for the five year period and three others tied at the same mark.

It can partially be explained by the fact that US-27 through our county carries a tremendous flow of traffic all year around and especially during the tourist season. The five miles of US-27 south of Grayling was proven death trap for some time, before it was made into a divided highway. This improvement could shrink the death toll in our county over the next five years.

The amazing fact though, is that one of the counties in the state that had but a 21 death toll over the five year period has a population of 28,344 in contrast to Crawford County's population of 4,151. Out of the twenty counties in the state that had a smaller death toll than ours, 18 had larger populations and only two were smaller. Likewise with the three counties that had the same death toll, all were of much larger populations.

It is not a good record to look at and it surely is not one of which the people of this county can be proud. What can you do about it? Just be sure that you drive carefully. If you do ... and we mean YOU, that death toll can be completely erased. — R. W. S.

Few Changes In Bird Regulations

Michigan's 1956 waterfowl hunting regulations will be changed only slightly from last year. As in 1955, hunters will have a 70-day season, from October 1st through December 9th.

Changes in regulations this year include an October 1-30 season on Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe. Last year the season was 15 days shorter — October 1-15.

Another change closes the season on wood ducks. Last year hunters could include one wood duck in the daily bag and possession limits. Under federal regulations, just released, wood ducks will be illegal this year in Michigan and other states in the Mississippi flyway.

The federal government again authorized up to 70 days of hunting and the same bag limits as last year's ducks, geese and coots. Michigan accepted the maximum seasons allowed.

Bag limits will be: ducks, four per day and eight in possession; geese, five per day and five in possession, including not more than two Canada geese; coots, 10 per day and 10 in possession; rails (except sora) and gallinules, 15 per day and 15 in possession; sora rails, 25 per day and 25 in possession; Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe, eight per day and in possession; woodcock, four per day and eight in possession.

Shooting hours are unchanged, from a half hour before sunrise to a half hour before sunset, except woodcock may be hunted until sunset.

Seasons on rails and gallinules also were set for October 1-December 9. This is a 10-day extension of the 1955 seasons. Bag and possession limits on these species remain unchanged.

Some 4,000,000 young Americans will be able to vote for the President for the first time in the November 6 election. Are you one of them? If so, be sure to register. If you don't get your name in the book you can't vote, says the Kiwanis Ballot Battalion.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Young at Lake Margrethe last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schatz and family of Muskegon. Also recent weekend guests at the Young home were Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Stillwell of Lansing.

Recent weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walcott have been Mr. and Mrs. Harold McFarland and Mr. and Mrs. Don Towns and son Bernard of Flint. The two couples also visited with other friends and relatives while here.
